Have you noticed that dogs live by their noses? A dog's sense of smell is more powerful than we can possibly imagine. So instead of nagging your dog to stop sniffing, here's a chance to learn how to have fun letting your dog be led around by their nose!!

Scent games are useful because:

- All dogs have the natural ability
- The act of scenting is both stimulating and tiring for your dog
- Scenting games can be played by the whole family
- Some sight based games will be included too

Included in the seminar & fun for you and your dog:

- Both indoor and outdoor activities (weather permitting)
- Beverages and snacks-provided

Dee Ganley is the author of Changing People Changing Dogs-positive solutions for working with dogs. For over 35 years, Dee has been instrumental in promoting positive reinforcement training in the New England area. Her workshops and classes have helped thousands of dogs and their owners. Dee has a particular talent for helping owners with dogs with serious issues such as aggression and separation anxiety. Check out her website at www.deesdogs.com She currently teaches 6 classes per week and provides private consultations to dogs and their caregivers at many locations and in individuals homes too. "Teaching dogs how to use their noses effectively is a joy for me – scent work provides the human and their canine partner a delightful, challenging and fun opportunity to work as a team. It's so rewarding for all".
